The photo, titled “Quality Time“, shows a young father spending time with his son.

They are sitting on a meadow bordered with trees. The father has a lit match in his hand which he shows to the child. The boy, who might be two years old, quite obviously is intrigued by the fire, but he does not seem to be frightened in the least.

I think the father wants to both play with his son and teach him something about the world. He knows the boy will be fascinated by the fire and this is why he seizes the opportunity to make the child aware of the dangers it implies.
